

today in brief

'Shamrock' opened wires to view

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Security Agency illegally examined about 150,000 telegrams a month sent by private citizens to and from foreign countries, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said today.

Church, head of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, said the messages were scrutinized under a secret program called "Shamrock" which was ended by order of Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger on May 15.

Plug pulled

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — A police investigation is continuing into the circumstances surrounding the death Sunday of terminally ill Maryjane Dahl, 16, in a hospital here.

Officers said the plug on a respirator keeping the girl alive was pulled from a wall socket. She was found by nurses, who plugged the machine in again but failed to revive her. The respirator was off for 15 minutes.

Bills to aid NY strike snags

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Speaker Carl Albert and Chairman William Proxmire of the Senate Banking Committee said today bills to save New York City from default with federal loan guarantees were in trouble in Congress.

Albert scuttled plans to bring a $7 billion loan guarantee bill before the House Tuesday. "We always want to wait until we can pass a bill," he told a news conference.

Kidney machine aiding Franco

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — A kidney machine brought Generalissimo Francisco Franco's uricemic poisoning under control today but his doctors said blood clotting continued and new heart problems arose. Political violence spread in Madrid.

Levi seeks OK for some wire taps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Edward H. Levi today urged Congress to allow the government to continue to use national security wiretaps and bugs without obtaining court warrants.

In testimony prepared for the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, Levi said courts now hold that this use does not violate the 4th Amendment prohibition against unlawful searches and seizures and is necessary to protect national interests.

Sessions open

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has voted 86-0 to open all committee meetings to press and public except sessions affecting national security or personal privacy.

In a separate 81-6 vote on so-called "sunshine" legislation, the Senate approved open conference committee meetings but allowed that if a majority of the conferees of either the House or Senate approved, the meetings could be closed.

Henry backs Egypt, Israeli aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today urged Congress to approve $2.24 billion in economic and military aid for Israel and $750 million in economic aid for Egypt to stabilize the Middle East.

Failure to do so, he warned the House International Relations Committee, might result in a U.S.-Soviet confrontation in the oil rich area.

Gun battles resume in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Gun battles near the port of Junieh, where a "mystery ship" was reportedly unloading weapons, renewed tension north of Beirut today and marred efforts to prevent the outbreak of another round of civil war.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger sent a message to Lebanese leaders expressing American hopes for an early end to the fighting and for the "independence and territorial integrity" of Lebanon.

GOP feud behind Rocky's move

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller said today he withdrew from the 1976 nomination picture to keep "party squabbling" from complicating President Ford's job and not because they disagreed on government policy.

The vice president, in his first public discussion of the bombshell decision three days ago, took himself out of consideration as Ford's running mate, said he came to Washington to "serve, to help solve problems."

"I didn't come down to get caught in party squabbles," he said. "And therefore I wrote the letter" last weekend withdrawing.

By taking himself out of the picture, Rockefeller said he had "eliminated part of the problem which was the basis for the party squabbles." He said that "a minority of a minority" of conservative Republicans opposed his place on a ticket. Rockefeller has been a sore point with the party's right wing since he opposed Sen. Barry Goldwater at the 1964 GOP national convention.

Appearing completely at ease as he slouched at a podium in the Executive Office Building auditorium in a half-hour news conference, Rockefeller said his disagreement with the President on federal help for New York City was "not the basic element" in his decision.

"He said he would continue to speak up when he disagreed with Ford on issues, just as he did in arguing that Washington ought to help New York when the President opposed it," Rockefeller said tersely that the President's position would hurt the Republican party in New York but he did not think Ford had written off the state in 1976.

He absolutely refused to speculate about the possibility he might end up running for president, himself saying, "I have no plans beyond this news conference."

Rockefeller dodged any direct discussion of the Republican conservative wing's long standing objections to him and to Ford's apparent decision to back him as 1976 running mate.

Gas rate increase wins nod

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission announced today it has granted Intermountain Gas Company a rate increase of slightly more than five per cent to offset a hike in the price on natural gas imported from Canada.

The increase, which became effective Nov. 1, coincides with the boost in the border price of gas from British Columbia from $1.40 to $1.60 per thousand cubic feet.

Intermountain was authorized by the commission to pass through a decrease in rates charged by the firm's supplier, Northeast Pipeline Corporation. The decrease of .360 cents per therm is the result of a rate reduction ordered by the Federal Power Commission and a special credit to storage gas purchases.

The net effect of the two actions ordered by the commission is a .917 cents per therm increase to all Intermountain Gas customers. Residential customers should expect an approximately 3.44 per cent increase in the cost of gas used in November or about $1.61 added to a $30 bill.

Rock Creek work starts

By CRICKET BIRD

TWIN FALLS — The city of Twin Falls Wednesday began the Rock Creek Canyon Parkway project by knocking down several dilapidated houses in the canyon.

The project is the third phase of a five-year, $700,000 community development project for Twin Falls.

The plan calls for about 70 acres of riparian bottom lands to be incorporated into a natural parkway as part of a five-year community development project.

Although the Rock Creek project has begun, $120,000 in federal funds to cover the cost of the project have not yet been released.

But LeMar Orion, Twin Falls Community Development director, said today the plan for the Rock Creek project has been approved by the federal department of Housing and Urban Development.

"We should be getting some word back concerning the $120,000 pretty soon," Orion said.

Because he feels the money for the parkway will be granted very soon, Orion said he authorized beginning the Rock Creek Parkway project.

Orion said he had the old buildings checked for historical value before ordering the demolition, but found them to be of "no particular historical value."

The city is in the process of obtaining appraisals on six pieces of property in the canyon, Orion said. "Once we get those appraisals complete, we'll go ahead and try to negotiate a price."

Orion said the city eventually hopes to obtain all the property in the canyon from the Singing Bridge to just north of the golf course, but is now concentrating on an unoccupied property.

"Once we get that property, we'll go ahead and clean it up... and take all the trash out," Orion said. The Camp Fire Girls group is considering making the canyon clean-up a biennial project, Orion said, adding that he hoped other civic groups and organizations would become involved in the parkway development.

In the project area, one industrial plant, Idaho Frozen Foods, still has waste running into the stream, Orion said. The company "is scheduled to go onto the sewer system as soon as our sewer plant is completed... so that problem should be alleviated."

But the parkway development plan doesn't call for any water quality improvements.

"Our project isn't going to deal with the quality of the water," Orion said. "What we're trying to do is upgrade the physical appearance of the canyon. The water quality problem is going to take some time."

Orion said the project as now envisioned would include hiking and bicycle trails in a natural setting.

"We'll have the trails down there but we're going to kind of let it go semi-wild... and encourage natural vegetation and wildlife. What we're thinking about is more of a nature trail," Orion said.

HAIR, BEARDS and clothing covered by powder, fine clay dust, these volunteers for King Hassan's march from Morocco into Spanish Sahara appear to have lost some of their enthusiasm for the venture after a long wait. But an estimated 350,000 surged across the border today amid cheers and waving banners. The incursion was expected to halt short of a Spanish defense line. (Story, p. 6) (UPI)

Steel, autos hike prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Increases in the costs of steel and new cars drove up overall wholesale prices by 1.8 per cent in October, the biggest monthly increase in a year, the Labor Department said today.

The increase in government's Wholesale Price Index, which translates into a double-digit annual rate of 21.6 per cent, soon will be felt by consumers in the retail prices they pay for goods and services.

For the past three months combined, prices have increased at a compounded annual rate of 13.5 per cent. The increase last month was the biggest since October, 1974, when wholesale prices jumped 2.9 per cent.

The prices of industrial commodities, which make up 70 per cent of all the items measured, were up a substantial 1.2 per cent — also the biggest increase in a year. This was caused primarily by price increases for steel and other metals, textile goods and the 1976 model automobiles.

Although prices paid to farmers fell in October, the costs of farm products and foods jumped 1.7 per cent, led by increases in the prices of low tubers, fluid milk, rice, poultry and vegetables, the department said.

The Wholesale Price Index stood at 178.9 in October, a 5.1 per cent increase over last year. This means the same commodities that sold for $100 in 1967, now sell for $178.90.

The sharp increase in October indicated that inflationary pressures on consumers may intensify in the months ahead. Increases in wholesale food prices are passed along quickly to the consumer, while industrial prices are felt much later.

Industrial prices, which tended to level off earlier this year, have been increasing by steadily higher percentages since last May. This is a more ominous sign than the rise in traditionally volatile food prices. The overall 1.8 per cent increase in wholesale prices took seasonal factors into account. On an unadjusted basis, wholesale prices rose 0.7 per cent based on increases of 0.1 per cent in food and farm products and 0.9 per cent in industrial commodities.

Buildup hit

GUATEMALA CITY, Guatemala (UPI) — Guatemala today denounced the British troop build-up in neighboring Belize as "aggression" and said its army was ready to "defend" its territorial claims on the self-governing British colony.

Demands also were voiced for a complete diplomatic break with London as tension mounted over Britain's sudden decision to pour military units into tiny Belize as "a precaution" against Guatemalan invasion threats.

Guatemala was reported to have amassed troops along the Belize border and to have put its air force on alert.

OK for illegal parking?

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City still appears to be encouraging illegal parking.

State Law prohibits vehicles from parking within 20 feet of an intersection with a crosswalk or within 30 feet of a stop sign. But city parking meters stand close to stop signs and crosswalks all over downtown Twin Falls.

For awhile the city put hoods on these meters. But in a check the Times-News found few of these hoods still exist.

According to Jean Millar, city manager, the city may have taken off some of the hoods and vandals may have removed the others.

But Millar questioned whether state law really prohibits parking next to crosswalks and stop signs in all instances. "Maybe I read the state code a little bit differently than some other people," he said.

He said the code adopts a manual on uniform traffic control devices which "states that the decision to use a particular device at a particular location should be made on the basis of an engineering study."

He said that "instead of whimsically applying some general standard" the manual calls for engineering study decisions on what is necessary at each corner.

"We look at each one individually," he said.

Finances plague big rights group

NEW YORK — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, the country's oldest and largest civil rights group, is in grave financial trouble. The organization is reported to be barely meeting its payroll; failing to meet increasing legal expenses and unable to satisfy some creditors. Branches of the NAACP are reported to be "barely staying alive."

"It's hand-to-mouth, touch-and-go," said one staff member of the NAACP's New York headquarters. "Officials insist that the 67-year-old association is not in any danger of closing down but inside sources contend that the fiscal plight — a deficit of nearly a quarter of a million dollars — is 'treaching seen."

at a point where it could imperil critical programs that are the life-blood of the organization," including its foremost thrust in school desegregation litigation.

It is a situation heavily tinged with irony. The crisis, for example, is occurring at a time when there are signs of new life in some branches, including intense and sometimes virulent election campaigns.

In addition, the decline in federal support that created many community action agencies has in many instances left the NAACP — which for the most part has steadfastly refused federal dollars — as the only community organization in many parts of the country.

Officials within the association argue that despite the economy, resources to close the budget gap exist within the branches — about 1,400 altogether, with a membership around 450,000.

Jesse Turner, national treasurer, acknowledged that the problem is "serious," and said that the major problems are on the operational end and include such expenses as transportation and utilities.

But he repeated, "I didn't come to Washington to complicate his life" and force the President to spend more time than merited on internal party arguments.

Rockefeller made it clear he didn't altogether agree with the claims that he was poison to southern Republicans. He said a South Carolina GOP gathering he attended was expected to draw 250 people, but more than 700 showed up.

Rockefeller appeared in good humor through most of the news conference, but became short when one reporter asked repeated questions about his decision.

He said the matter was presuming something he knew was true — that he had been campaigning for Ford — and that he wrote his letter to Ford to end the matter "once and for all."

Asked what his role will be in the future, Rockefeller said, "I have no role, I'm not a candidate. I have said all along that the President after his nomination should select his running mate. People didn't seem to believe that but I took care of that by writing the letter to Ford announcing his decision."

"Because people didn't believe what I was saying so the only way I could make them believe was to write the letter and take it out of being an issue," he said.

Rockefeller said Ford did not encourage his decision not to be on the ticket.

Asked what he would do after leaving office in January, 1977, the multimillionaire vice president said, "I never worry about what I will do next. I will always find some occupation."

Rockefeller said that since he was the basis for the "squabbles" in philosophy between the GOP right and left wings, he said he believed that with him out of the picture the difficulties would be settled — "I've eliminated myself and therefore I eliminated part of the problem which was the basis for the party squabbles."

On Ford, he said, "I think he will be nominated and he's my candidate."

When asked if he thought Ford had anything to worry about from the picture of the difficulties would be settled — "I've eliminated myself and therefore I eliminated part of the problem which was the basis for the party squabbles."

On Ford, he said, "I think he will be nominated and he's my candidate."

NELSON ROCKEFELLER causes GOP clash

But he added that he had no plans to seek the 1976 nomination, despite the fact that he has been in the forefront of his party's presidential politics for nearly two decades.

Asked whether he and Ford had anticipated the squabbles that would split the party before the nomination in August, 1974, Rockefeller said that if Ford had any misgivings, he had not verbalized them at the time.

But he pointed to remarks by Ford's campaign manager Howard Callaway two months ago that Rockefeller would be a liability for the GOP.

"I'm not discouraged at all. I have never felt better," Rockefeller told a reporter who said he looked discouraged. "I don't think there has ever been a vice president that has ever been given so much latitude" in the job.

"But I would not be diverted from the job I came down to," he said.

Asked about his presidential ambitions, Rockefeller said, "Listen, I wouldn't have accepted the vice presidency if I wasn't willing to accept the presidency if God forbid something happened to the president."

But he added that he had no plans to seek the 1976 nomination, despite the fact that he has been in the forefront of his party's presidential politics for nearly two decades.

Chile, church trade charges

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — The Roman Catholic Church was in a major dispute with the Chilean military government today over government charges that nuns, priests and other persons had aided fugitive left-wing government opponents for reasons of conscience.

The government has arrested an American priest and an English doctor accused of treating a wounded leftist guerrilla. Two American nuns also were accused of aiding fugitives, but their whereabouts are unknown.

A U.S. embassy spokesman refused to comment on the case of the Americans, saying, "Since we have good relations with the Chilean government, we want to maintain them."

The nuns accused of helping extremists are Helen Nelson and Peggy Lupsie, who home addresses given. The priest, Rev. Gerard Wheelan, has lived in Chile for 13 years and, according to the U.S. Embassy, is a Chilean citizen.

TF planning panel seeks new director

By GORDON JUDD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Twin Falls Joint Planning Council are taking steps to find a replacement for fired planning director David Richey.

Council members met Wednesday night and agreed to begin looking for a new planner who will preferably have a "background in engineering" and be a good "public relations man," as well.

In the meantime their offices will remain open as usual.

The joint planning council has both publicly and privately said one of the major reasons they asked for Richey's resignation last week was due to the planner's inability to deal effectively with the public and with the joint planning council.

At Wednesday's meeting the planning council members said they hoped the new planning director will have the ability to regain the confidence of the city and county elected officials.

Chairman Jack Muldoon did not rule out the possibility that a consulting-type planner might be hired instead of a full time, salaried employee.

"What we are looking for is a planner who can communicate with people — one who gets out and meets with city and county officials and the citizens," Muldoon said.

Muldoon admitted that the firing of Richey might delay the final draft of the comprehensive plan but assured interested persons "We have inventoried all of the work and material completed to date and have it all locked up and in our hands."

"Work will continue by our staff who will be doing graphics and map work," he said.

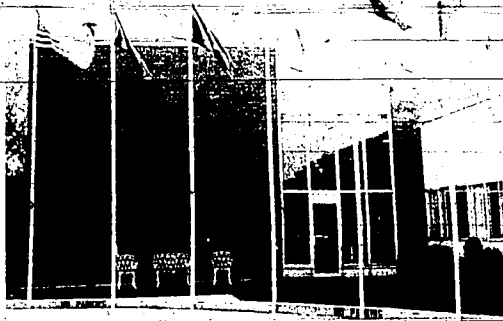

"We still expect the plan will be ready to go to hearing shortly after the first of the year," Muldoon said.

Muldoon feels the new planning director should have a working knowledge of the plan before it is submitted to public hearings early next year.

"We will make sure if (comprehensive plan) has proper exposure before the final draft is drawn," he said.

In other business Ann Cover, county commissioner, reported that she would recommend the council be funded by the county instead of the joint funding plan presently in effect with the city and county each paying one-half.

Mrs. Cover also advised council members that she was preparing suggested revisions in the articles and bylaws to bring about restructuring of the council. The proposed changes, which will be voted upon at the next meeting of the council on Nov. 19th, provide for a member from both school and highway districts as well as a member at large to be appointed by the council for a one-year term.

TF rural mail carrier retires after 26 years

TWIN FALLS — Dwight L. Shaw, a rural mail carrier in Twin Falls with more than 26 years with the Twin Falls Post Office, will retire Friday.

Shaw has more than 22 years federal service, counting six months with the Library of Congress and more than five years in the U.S. Air Force.

He spent three and one-half years in prison camps during World War II after being taken prisoner by the Japanese.

Shaw was born in Berger and returned here after his release from the service. He spent about one and one-half years in the main office before becoming a rural carrier on Route 1, Twin Falls. In the 1960s he nearly became postmaster when nominated for the post by U.S. Congressman Ralph Harding and approved by the Democratic Central Committee.

Shaw said he was disappointed when the appointment fell through, but since that time post office operations have been removed from politics. However, Shaw says, the politics have not all been removed from the post office.

In the 25 years of driving his route each day, Shaw has traveled in excess of half a million miles. His present car has 135,000 miles to its credit. Last year he received a 25-year safe driving award for no accidents during that time.

Shaw, who also farms south of Twin Falls and has a real estate license, says he plans to spend his retirement in these two endeavors. His wife, Susan, is a real estate broker and the couple is planning to open a real estate business in addition to their 300 acres of farm land which they own and rent.

In addition, Shaw says, he has been given an opportunity to cruise for eight days aboard the U.S. Navy Kitty Hawk aircraft carrier.

He will fly to Hawaii Dec. 8 to board the carrier as a guest of his son-in-law who serves in the U.S. Navy. The cruise is part of a new program the navy is making available to relatives of flyers.

Shaw and his wife are also planning a trip to Switzerland in the near future. Mrs. Shaw was born there and has not had an opportunity to return.

DWIGHT SHAW retires Friday

Juveniles arrested

TWIN FALLS — Five juveniles were arrested in Twin Falls and are being held for Salem, Ore., authorities on grand larceny charges.

Twin Falls city police took the five into custody Wednesday after a bartender reported a group of youngsters acting suspiciously in an adjoining parking lot.

The boys told officers they were attempting to change a tire on their automobile. A check with the National Crime Information Center revealed the vehicle had been stolen from Salem.

Burley sells dry well lot

BURLEY — The City of Burley sold a dry well property Monday for $600.

Mr. and Mrs. A.M. (Pat) Kelly made the only bid when the property was auctioned by City Clerk Bud Brinegar at Monday's council meeting.

The $600 was the appraisal figure for the old stake house well on the Sunset Addition. The well had gone dry.

Councilman L. V. Morgan remarked he felt the Kellys were the appropriate purchasers, since his place adjoined the well property.

The council also accepted the bid of PMP on storm sewer pipe and manholes.

More emphasis sought on vocational education

BOISE (UPI) — State Sen. Walter Varbrough, R-Grandview, urged Wednesday that Idaho give more emphasis to vocational education to help solve both the state's financial and social problems.

Varbrough was keynote speaker for a conference on vocational education sponsored by the State Board of Education and the Advisory Council on Vocational Education.

Speakers pointed to a growing demand for vocational training, but a lack of programs and facilities to serve all those seeking training.

"The educational system has overlooked one of the greatest opportunities and needs that we have, that of training our young people in the world of work," he said.

"I sincerely believe our young people today are just as good as they ever were, but the environment has changed and we're responsible."

Varbrough said 11 per cent of jobs are considered professional, with the other 89 per cent requiring some vocational training. But most of the educational effort is directed toward the minority, he said, noting the Idaho legislature appropriated $45 million for higher education last year and $7.5 million for vocational education.

Varbrough, a member of the Idaho legislature's joint finance-appropriations committee, said more than five per cent of those who applied for vocational education were turned down because of lack of programs and space.

He said the average 11 month vocational education training program costs from $1,700 to $1,500 per student.

"We in Idaho should give some very serious consideration to giving a much closer look and a much higher priority to vocational education. This might solve 100 per cent of our financial problems in the State of Idaho and about 90 per cent of the social ones."

Clarence Haight, Coeur d'Alene, director of the North Idaho College vocational-technical school, said the state's six area vo-tech schools have operated on an "status quo" budget for two of the past three years.

He said 90 per cent of the graduates are placed in occupations for which they trained, but added more than twice the number admitted are turned away each year.

Robert MacFarlane, state president of the AFL-CIO, called for a careful study of areas of employment. He said currently many students are enrolled in construction related programs even though unemployment has reached 40 per cent in the construction industry.

John Christoffersen, Idaho Falls, director of the Eastern Idaho Vocational Technical School, said the advisory council will seek a $200,000 fund to be used for special programs to train students to fill needs of Idaho industry.

Church dubious about proposed code revision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Wednesday proposed sections of legislation to revise and reform the Federal Criminal Code are an affront to the public's right to know.

Church said he has deep reservations over many of the proposed changes in the 70-page bill, "especially those sections which would establish a latter-day sedition act."

"These provisions would, by criminal sanction, strangle the public's right to know the transgressions of its government servants and intimidate the essential ability of the press to report matters in the public interest."

Church said he will give "most careful scrutiny to any version of the bill reported to the full Senate for action," and that a "spirited and informed debate is vital."

"As chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, I well know the difficulties of uncovering abuses the government chooses to hide from public view under the guise of 'national security.'"

"All of us have been concerned these past few years over illegal and improper conduct by public officials in high places. These outrages have been easier to cope with simply because they have been made so visible.

"Yet Senate Bill (one would have been easier to cope with simply because they have been made so visible.)" mandate, by criminal sanction, the silence not only of those in government with knowledge of abuses and even illegal activities, but also of reporters, who are able to uncover such misdeeds," he said.

Tax notes issued

BOISE (UPI) — State Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon said Wednesday she issued $16 million in tax anticipation notes to bring Idaho's general fund out of the red.

She said a major reason for the deficit in the general fund was the quarterly transfer of over $17 million to Idaho's public schools.

Miss Moon said she purchased the anticipated notes issued through use of money in nearly 400 other funds which were not needed at the present time. Through such a transaction there is no interest money changing hands, she added.

Court upholds decision

BOISE (UPI) — In a 3-2 decision, the Idaho Supreme Court said today that a defendant must show how testimony about his refusal to identify himself at the time of arrest is prejudicial to his case.

Written by Justice Allan G. Shepard, the opinion affirmed Willie Wright's conviction of robbing a small grocery store at Pocatello of $94 with a knife April 11, 1974.

Justices Charles R. Donaldson and Joseph McFadden concurred in the opinion. Justice Robert E. Bakes dissented and Chief Justice Henry F. McQuate concurred in the dissent.

Wright appealed his conviction on grounds that references were made during his trial to his refusal to give his name at the time of arrest and his request for an attorney.

These references arose in the testimony of arresting Police Officer Gary Rossiter and in unrecorded portions of the prosecution's closing argument.

In his appeal, Wright argued that since he chose to rely on his constitutional right to remain silent at arrest, he was prejudicially denied due process by drawing his silence to the jury's attention.

DEAR ABBY: I want to get married again, but my family is against it.
You see, I met this man in 1914. We wanted to get married December of 1915, but our parents said we were too young. (I was 14 and Ruby was 18.)
World War I came along and Ruby joined the Navy. Meanwhile I married someone else and spend 54 unhappy years with him. He died three years ago and guess who suddenly came into my life again? Ruby! His wife of 51 years had died, and we discovered the old love was still there.
I am now 75, and my children don't want me to get married because they're afraid they'll lose my monthly checks. I'm sure Ruby and I can make it together. Please answer soon.

your health

BY GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson:
My doctor said I have a mild case of bronchial asthma. Can this ever be cured?

Quite often my lungs feel like they can't expand like they should. The medication doesn't seem to help very much. My doctor said there is nothing else he can do to help me. Because I'm allergic to a lot of medications, I am still smoking cigarettes.

I'm sending along the brand names of the two medicines I'm taking for it. What are these supposed to do for my bronchial tubes or lungs? — Mrs. P.K.

Besides your allergy to many medications, there are probably other factors in your environment — certain foods, dust, animal danders, etc. — that can provoke your asthma. You might increase this.

One of the two medications you mention, one dilates your bronchial tubes to make breathing easier during attacks. The other is a relatively new preparation, which may prevent attacks but does not stop one in progress. Its action in forestalling attacks is unclear, but it has been found quite effective.

Asthma problems

Don't see why your doctor tells you there is nothing else that can help you. There certainly is. Why don't you stop smoking cigarettes and end all of that "auto pollution"?

The treatment for asthma depends on curing or controlling the underlying causes, whether allergic in origin or physical as in the case of your smoking.

Dear Dr. Thosteson:

I would like to understand neuretic gastritis. I have had it following ulcer surgery two years ago — J.B.

I would like to know much more about your problem to be very specific. The type of surgery you had could be involved in some such operations, what is called the "dumping syndrome" occurs, especially if a sizable portion of stomach has been removed. Dumping syndrome refers to the sudden passage of food into the upper bow.

Does your problem occur continually or only occasionally? It occurs occasionally, keep track of the food eaten for dinner before diarrhea occurs. The use of alcoholic beverages can be a factor, too.

A study of the intestinal tract by X-ray and proctoscope would be in order. In some cases, a lack of proper amounts of hydrochloric acid in the stomach can cause diarrhea, and you might be checked for this.

I trust you have mentioned the symptoms to your doctor. Too many patients undergo surgery such as yours, then neglect to report post-operative symptoms. In many cases, they are to be expected, and the doctor can prescribe methods of alleviating them.

My booklet, "How to Heal Peptic Ulcers and Keep Them Healed," could be helpful to you, since it discusses such operations, with some post-operative hints. For a copy send 25 cents to me in care of this newspaper, and enclose a long stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Little gain reported in cleaning up US air

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Little has been done to rid America's cities of dangerous auto pollution and unless major changes are made, the problem may never be brought under control, an Environmental Protection Agency official said today.

Deputy EPA chief John Quarles noted that 1975 was the year when, under the Environmental Protection Act of 1970, "America was supposed to have clean air."

But he said, "The fact is that things are not much better... and the air over our major cities is still not safe to breathe. Unless some major changes are made, auto pollution may never be brought under control in this country."

In a speech prepared for a Boston public transportation conference and released in Washington, Quarles said the nation missed its clean air deadline primarily because U.S. dependence on the automobile did not weaken.

His harshest criticism was reserved for U.S. circuit court rulings in San Francisco, the District of Columbia and Richmond, Va., that said the EPA lacks authority to make states set up and operate pollution control programs.

"Emission controls on new automobiles are not enough," Quarles said. "To achieve the primary anti-pollution standards, we must cut back on our use of the automobile itself."

"We have made some progress, but not a great deal," he said. "But now, even the little progress which has been made in jeopardy. A series of circuit court rulings... may bring these efforts to a virtual standstill."

Quarles recalled that in 1972, the EPA was required by several federal courts to hurriedly create "mandatory anti-pollution programs" including "land use and transportation controls" — such as special bus and commuter lanes and in-city parking restrictions — to reduce automobile use in states which had failed to develop their own plans.

Because the courts set tight deadlines, he said, there was no chance to draw up the plans with local participation, and "we made a number of mistakes." The most restrictive plan would have cut Los Angeles car traffic by 86 percent, a goal set by the court.

"The same courts which marched us up the hill three years ago are now demanding that we march down again," he said. "Unfortunately, the basic problem remains."

Resigns

OVER 50 years' involvement of the Sarnoff family with RCA Corp. ended Wednesday when Robert W. Sarnoff resigned as chairman and chief executive officer. There was speculation he was forced out. (UPI)

Fast trial law queried

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The prosecution and defense in the Sara Jane Moore case agree the new Speedy Trial Law needs clarification.

The act, which became effective Sept. 29, requires that all cases come to trial within 90 days of indictment.

Federal Public Defender James Hewitt is representing Mrs. Moore, charged with trying to shoot President Ford Sept. 22 in San Francisco. He argued the time spent undergoing psychiatric examination should not be counted in the 90-day period.

U.S. District Judge Samuel Conti set a Dec. 15 trial date for Mrs. Moore. He said he did so under the law despite the fact that much of the time since her arrest had been taken up with court-ordered psychiatric examinations in San Diego.

U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Wednesday opposed setting a later trial date for Mrs. Moore, but agreed some exceptions to the Speedy Trial Act should be clarified.

US food prices continue edging up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department says food prices rose 14.5 percent in each of the past two years and about 9 percent so far this year.

As for the final three months of this year, a department report said, prices will "edge up slightly" from the July-September levels, with increases for beef, poultry, fresh fruits and potatoes, but will probably decline for pork, fish and dairy products.

But the report says food price inflation may slow to an annual rate of 4 to 5 percent next year. That would be the lowest rate since 1972, when prices rose 4.5 percent.

The department said Wednesday the prediction for next year is based on estimates for the first six months of 1976 and their validity for the full year would depend on the size of next year's crops.

USDA economists said the first half forecast is qualified because they cannot yet be certain about final export demand for the nation's record 1975 crops or about how fast livestock farmers will use these crops to expand production of meat, poultry and similar foods.

The report said this year's production was big enough to permit both a price-restraining increase in supplies for American consumers next year and big exports, including all predicted sales to the Soviet Union.

Hunters keep spot on Squeaky's jury

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Lynette Fromme, pleading for the world "to stop hunting," has failed to block tentative selection of two deer hunters from the jury that will decide if she tried to murder President Ford.

Miss Fromme, 27, an ardent environmentalist, said Wednesday part of her defense would be based on the killing of wild animals and she objected to hunters being considered for the jury.

Miss Fromme is accused of attempting to murder Ford, allegedly pointing a loaded .45-caliber pistol at him from a sidewalk crowd during his Sept. 5 visit to Sacramento. If convicted, she faces a possible maximum life prison term.

"I am pleading for the rest of the world to stop hunting," she declared as she challenged housewife Rose Rodolf. "If she's made up her mind on this, she may have on other things too."

But U.S. District Judge Thomas J. MacBride, who was charged earlier by Miss Fromme for hunting "deers," rejected the motion filed Mrs. Rodolf said she would not allow her deer hunting pastime to affect her judgment of the defendant.

Miss Fromme also argued against the selection of canery worker Leroy Lee because he too hunted deer and said "he would take that into the deliberations and be judging himself."

Panel wants oil price cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Oil prices should be forced down before they go up, says a Congressional committee heading over a compromise energy policy.

A House-Senate conference committee, defying a probable presidential veto, planned final action today on pricing sections of the oil bill, which it enacted would force gasoline prices down about four cents a gallon immediately.

The prices would later be tied to inflationary increases and allowed to rise.

The House and Senate voted Wednesday on slightly different versions of the same idea.

No auto output hike likely

DETROIT (UPI) — U.S. automakers are reluctant to step up production despite heavy October sales and a significant inventory reduction.

Industry analysts Wednesday estimated there was a 53-day supply of cars in dealer inventories in transit on Nov. 1, compared with a 63-day supply at the beginning of October. Sales for the month were 23 percent above Oct. 1974 figures, the strongest since May of last year.

But automakers have shied away from setting an immediate average oil price lower than the current level, allowing increases to match inflation and giving the President some leeway on changing price levels.

Under current oil price controls, which type Nov. 15, "old oil" based on 1972 production rates, is controlled at $5.25 a barrel and "new oil," produced above the 1972 rate, is uncontrolled and selling at about $12. The average price is about $8.25.

That average would drop to $7.55 in the Senate plan approved Wednesday and $7.15 in the House plan.

spurring production — in keep inventories in check and avoid a repeat of last year's massive layoffs.

The 53-day inventory, which an industry analyst described as "excellent and a nice working range to be in," is the lowest since September 1974 just before the start of the disastrous 1975 model year.

Inventory, expressed in days' supply, indicates how long new autos would last at the current sales rate if no more cars were built.

BURLEY — An experienced lineman was tentatively approved for hiring Tuesday night, giving Burley's electrical department two crews.

The council approved employing former city workman Jack Brandon on formal application and approval by Mayor Chuck Spadock and Councilman Clayton Taylor.

In recommending that the city hire Brandon as a lineman, Electrical Superintendent John Christian pointed out that Brandon had worked for the city for four years and had been with the Bonneville Power Administration for the past 10 years.

He said another experienced lineman would allow the department to have two crews, one on maintenance and another on construction. It would avoid letting out construction on contract.

Christian reminded the council of its participation in the West Burley substation now in planning stages, and said it would face many changes in the next 4-5 years, including the retirement of a lineman.

City will appoint mayor

MURTAUGH — The Murtaugh City Council will appoint one of its members as mayor at the Nov. 19 meeting, since there was no candidate for that post in Tuesday's election.

Richard Annala defeated Bob Rice for the one council post up for election, by a vote of 16 to 4.

The council also will have to appoint someone to fill the post of the councilman who is named mayor, Elva Petersen, city clerk, said.

61% vote in Castleford

CASTLEFORD — Bill Rosenkrantz and Jay Welch were elected to the Castleford city council Tuesday without opposition.

Rosenkrantz got 29 votes and Welch, 27. Four persons received 1 write-in vote each, including Mrs. O.A. Brown, Bessie Handell, C.N. Carter and Fritz Bybee.

Mrs. Amos Williams, city clerk, said 33, or 61 per cent of the 54 registered voters voted.

High density zoning eyed

BY BART QUESNELL
Times-News Writer

HAILEY — High density residential development along U.S. Highway 93 from the Gimlet Road to Ketchum three miles to the north is looming as a distinct possibility in Blaine County.

Alan Reynolds, county planning and zoning administrator, will present an impact statement next Wednesday about probable effects if the now undeveloped area is rezoned to high density.

The possibility of the rezone came up unexpectedly Tuesday when Allen Harshbarger Associates sought a rezone of 29.9 acres south of the Mountain Meadows Trailer Park to high density.

All the land presently surrounding the 30-acre parcel is built up to high density levels, according to Reynolds. He said because of the surrounding use, the land probably should be considered high density.

Under the high density zone, the land could conceivably hold one house on each one-eighth of an acre.

Planning commission member Mary Jane Marin said if the high density request is granted, every landowner in the area will ask for the same.

Council chairman Nick Purdy said the Blaine County ordinance states there should be no further high density rezones approved until central water and sewer is available to the lots.

However, Pete Allen, landowner, said the sewage question should be the decision of the health department to determine how many septic tanks the land can accommodate, not the planning commission.

Attorney Steve Tolman, representing Allen, said the initial plans now call for quarter-acre lots with homes to be built in the $35,000 or medium income range.

He said central water was being considered for the project, but not central sewer.

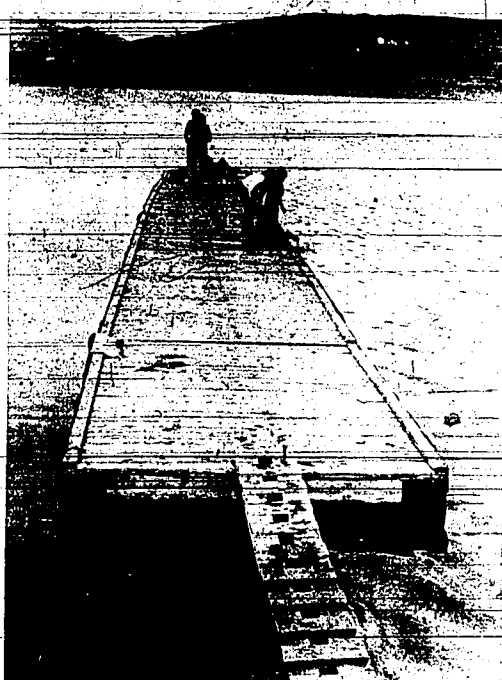

During a public hearing on the project, Gordon Glasman, owner of the Mountain Meadows Trailer Park, said all of the land from the Gimlet Road north to the steel bridge at the end of Cold Springs should be rezoned high density.

Commission member Marin said central sewer was mandatory in a high density development.

However, Reynolds told her the soil should determine whether a central collection system or septic tanks could be used.

Commission members agreed that housing was densely placed in many areas from the land in question, all the way into Ketchum.

The commission tabled the matter and told Reynolds to furnish an impact statement of the area if rezoned to high density with input from the city of Ketchum and the health department.

Smaller Idaho schools ask conference change

By SHANE O'NEILL
Times-News Writer

RUPERT — School superintendents in the Southern Idaho Conference met in Boise today to determine the future make-up of athletic competition for Minico High School.

A proposal calling for conference expansion, coupled with a split of the South Idaho Conference into two divisions is the topic of discussion.

The separation of schedulers sought by some smaller schools in the conference, including Minico, who have suffered severe defeats annually from the larger schools in football.

Minico and Caldwell high school are at the forefront of discussion aimed at the new alignment. Caldwell has not won a league game this season; Minico's only conference victory was over Caldwell.

Darrell Hatfield, Minicooka County School District superintendent, denied this week Minico will pull out of the SIC unless the realignment takes place.

Hatfield assured the school board that district officials had gone to a meeting in Burley last week with the single objective of expanding the conference and dividing it into two divisions, particularly in football.

"No one went wanting out," Dr. Hatfield stated.

The proposed expansion would bring in Burley and Blackfoot. Others discussed include Mountain Home, Madison and Jerome.

There was no pressure for a decision last week, because Boise and Meridian were not represented. A strong effort to reach a decision at today's meeting was expected.

Minico once belonged to the Eastern Idaho Conference, with Burley and Blackfoot. Hatfield pointed out that their shift would affect Madison and Rigby.

He added that Jerome is an Independent Class A-2 school which is expected to grow to A-1 size soon.

There has been some discussion of a new league if the division proposal is not accepted. It might be based on the Eastern Idaho Conference nucleus, adding Jerome, Minico, Caldwell, Nampa, and perhaps Mountain Home and Bonnevile, the latter scheduled to enter the SIC next year.

"There is no prestige in getting beat the way we get beat," Hatfield said of possible status loss from playing in a "second" division.

He pointed out that Minico, Caldwell and Nampa get "physically beat" when they play the powerhouses from Burley, Skyline, Boise, Highland and Capital.

Hatfield pointed out that Minico started the season with 40 on the varsity and played a game last week with 40 athletes. Including its sophomores, he said the program lost 30 players over the season and blamed it on the physical and discouraging beatings the team has taken.

The SIC enrollments show Burley 2,849, Capital 2,336, Boise 2,135, Twin Falls 2,110, Pocatello 1,930, Nampa 1,928, Meridian 1,914, Highland 1,900, Skyline 1,676, Minico 1,631, Idaho Falls 1,503 and Caldwell 1,189.

Hearing set on moratorium

GOODING — A public hearing is scheduled 2 p.m. Monday in the Gooding County Courthouse on the building moratorium on the Snake River Canyon rim.

Agency updates Carey Act laws

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Idaho Department of Water Resources has issued updated regulations for the Carey Act, an 80-year-old federal law allowing homesteading of federal lands in the West.

Interest in the act has surged recently, with 82 applications filed for about 337,000 acres in Idaho.

A major change in the amended regulations is the elimination of a requirement that homes on Carey Act land cover at least 100 square feet.

The new rule requires only that the homes meet local building and health code standards. This would allow mobile homes in some cases, according to R. Keith Huggins, director of the Idaho Department of Water Resources, which administers the Carey Act in Idaho.

Other changes in the regulations include:

— Reconsideration of an application when the number of homesteaders on it is increased. This will discourage "speculation" applications, according to Huggins. Speculators may file on a parcel to "block the land," sign up participants and then retire with additional homesteaders. Such action will throw the land open to real applications, Huggins said.

Financial responsibility must be proven when an application is initially filed. This also will discourage speculation.

— All loans or agreements entered into by the homesteaders must be listed. Another guard against speculation.

— The feasibility study and final proposal for use of the Carey Act land must be completed within one year of the filing date.

— If $10.55 per acre may be assessed against the homesteaders as reimbursement to the U.S. Bureau of Land Management for private costs. The BLM administers the Carey Act as the federal level.

Land involved in successfully contested filings will be disposed of through a lottery, which will discourage "claim jumping" according to Huggins.

Huggins said the state's dispute with the federal government over the maximum size of federal homestead is "still in federal court." Idaho claims a husband and wife can file jointly on 320 acres under the Carey Act. Federal officials, however, say a family will be allowed only 160 acres.

The state also claims a husband and wife are required to build only one house on their joint allotments, while the federal officials maintain a home must be constructed on each parcel.

Idaho also wants a court decision on whether 2 or 3 million acres of federal land in the state are available under the Carey Act.

The department of water resources accepts Carey Act applications and forwards them to BLM to be temporarily set aside for study. Only one Carey Act application has been approved for withdrawal by the BLM, according to Huggins.

Some have been rejected and the others are pending, he said.

Unsuccessful Blaine bid may lead to Camas plan

FAIRFIELD — Boise developer Bart Ballantyne who repeatedly has been foiled in any development proposal for Blaine County now has bought land in a Camas County in preparation for subdividing.

Ray Johnson, development engineer for Ballantyne, said Wednesday a preliminary plat has been presented to the Camas County Planning and Zoning Commission which seeks approval for 413 lots in 1,200 acres along Willow Creek.

The commission will review the plat Dec. 4 at 8 p.m. in the courthouse in Fairfield.

Johnson said the development will be on a minimum of one acre lots. Many lots are 2.5 acres and some are 5 acres.

Ballantyne said the property begins about 10 miles east of Fairfield and stretches east and west from the junction of the Princess Mine road and Baseline. The property extends to the foothills to the north, Johnson said, and includes about one-half mile of Willow Creek.

Deer do migrate through the area, Johnson said. He also said sufficient open space will be designated to the east and west of the main subdivision to allow unhindered migration.

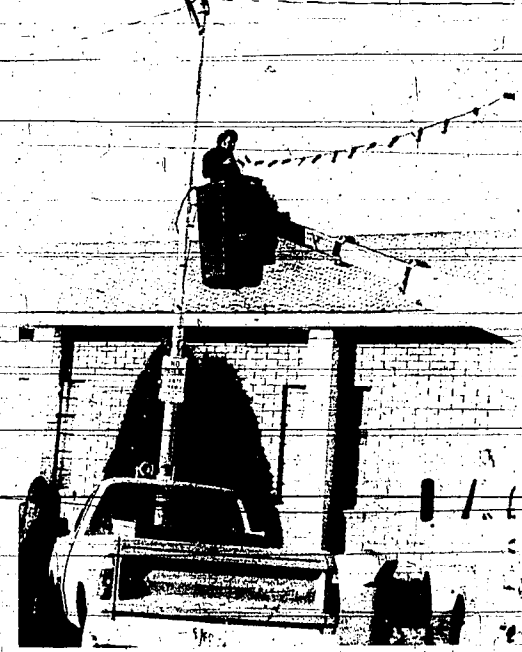

The proposed Camas County zoning ordinance recommends clustering of houses, he said, and central water and sewer lines. Central water is planned, Johnson said, but it is not certain whether the development will go with central sewage disposal.

Johnson says no recreational amenities such as tennis courts, swimming pool or golf course will be included in the development. He said Ballantyne feels people will move to the subdivision who intend to ski Soldier Mountain or use Magic Reservoir.

"We have no intent of marketing Willow Creek out of state," Johnson said.

He said Ballantyne Properties has not marketed anything out of the state. The new subdivision is not expected to create a permanent residency, he said.

Camas County will not be expected to plow the roads if the subdivision, he added. Private gravel roads will meet county specifications, according to Johnson.

Ex-California woman files $55,000 court suit

TWIN FALLS—A former California woman is suing a Twin Falls motel owner for $55,000 for allegedly backing out on a partnership between them.

Geraldine Richardson has filed a complaint against Norman Rayland, owner of business as Wagon Wheel Motel, Twin Falls. She alleges Rayland approached her last spring asking she become a partner in the motel business.

The plaintiff says she gave up a job in California and moved to Idaho to join Rayland in business. She worked at the business as a bartender, she said, until the defendant repudiated the partnership without justification.

She asks $50,000 in general compensatory damages and $5,000 punitive damages.

The complaint was filed in Fifth District Court here this week.

Another complaint filed in the same court by Amanda M. Carter against Ronald and Sandra Spearing asks $10,000 medical costs and damages as a result of an accident.

Miss Carter charges she was struck by a car driven by Sandra Spearing and owned by Ronald Spearing July 1, 1975. She was riding a bicycle and suffered painful injuries, the complaint charges.

In another complaint, Paul and Verla Warren are seeking damages from Joseph R. Trau and Twin Falls attorney Jay L. Depew as a result of a partnership arrangement which has been dissolved.

The complaint charges Jay L. Depew conspired with the other defendant to falsify bills against the business which were taken from the sale price of the bar before a division of revenue was made.

The complaint further charges the attorney was suspended from practice in Idaho by the Idaho Bar Association and did not inform the plaintiffs but continued to handle legal arrangements for the sale of the bar.

The plaintiffs ask $8,300 from Depew and $11,800 from Trau and an additional $5,000 punitive damages as well as permanent dissolving of the partnership.

Snowmobile sales 'good'

TWIN FALLS—Despite the energy crisis and a recession the snowmobile business is still good business in Idaho.

Over 19,000 snowmobiles—about one for every 40 residents—were licensed in Idaho this year, according to state records.

The ratio is about the same in Twin Falls County, where 1,013 snowmobiles were licensed during the annual period ending Oct. 31.

The number of 55 stickers issued to snowmobile owners has climbed steadily at both the state and county levels.

In 1975, 19,006 stickers were sold in the state, compared to 17,782 in 1974 and 15,870 in 1973. In Twin Falls County, the sticker sales have jumped about 200 per year; 1,013 in 1975, 825 in 1974 and 619 in 1973.

Eighty per cent of the snowmobile sticker revenue is retained at the county level, 15 per cent goes to the state and 5 per cent is given to local search and rescue units.

Steve Tabbs, a snowmobile salesman for Century Automotive Machine in Twin Falls, today said sales are climbing because "the farmer has had some good years... Farmers are the primary riders."

Jeff Clawson, a Gem Equipment Sales spokesman, said "more and more people have found this is a new recreation... It's a family participation sport."

Ending US, cotton promotion tie advised

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Recent congressional action to put a ceiling on the salary of a private cotton promotion executive is a strong indication that cotton growers should get their promotion program out of government hands, an industry spokesman says.

The congressional action came in an appropriations bill, which President Ford signed into law on Oct. 21, and which included a provision governing a scheduled $3 million federal grant to a private cotton group, Cotton, Inc.

Under the bill, the Agriculture Department was directed to cancel the grant if Cotton, Inc., pays any of its employees a salary and other compensation adding up to more than the compensation of the Secretary of Agriculture.

That posed a hard choice for Cotton, Inc., which early this year gave its president, J. Dicks Waters, a contract boosting his salary retroactively from $100,000 a year to a new level which reached $121,275 effective last May 15.

and including a number of other benefits. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz's salary, following a recent 5 per cent raise, is $63,000 a year.

Ernie Evans, board chairman of Cotton, Inc., said in a telephone interview from his Laurinburg, N.C., office that the congressional action "demonstrates that it would be desirable" to run the group's promotion and research programs without government interference.

Cotton, Inc., gets most of its money from a $1 a bale levy paid by cotton growers. Industry leaders have been discussing proposals for legislation under which the levy would be increased to provide more grower funding, and the controversial government grant which has been in effect since 1971 would be eliminated. With the federal grant dropped, the government presumably would end its controls over the way Cotton, Inc., spends its money.

"We'd like to be strictly on the basis of running our own program the way producers like, and not be subject to political action," Evans said. He said he hoped consideration of a new bill aimed at these goals could be requested by cotton industry groups "as soon as possible."

Evans said Cotton, Inc., directors have not yet decided whether they will try to comply with the new appropriations provision directing them to cut back Waters' compensation as the price for retaining the latest $3 million federal grant. He said the Agriculture Department has not yet given the group detailed notice of just what it would have to do to comply.

Among other things, Evans pointed out, officials have not yet told Cotton, Inc., whether any cuts in its president's pay would have to be backdated to the July 1 start of the current fiscal year. The board chairman said Cotton, Inc., directors are primarily concerned with their ability to keep the executive in their organization. "Because we don't think cotton producers should be denied access to talent."

Feed taint risk taken by plant

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Workers at a plant where an alleged cattle feed mixup led to the worst dairy and cattle disaster in Michigan history have sworn that they and their superiors knew the risk of contamination, but did nothing about it.

The disclosures, made first in the monthly farmers' publication, "The Michigan Farmer," and then Tuesday in the Grand Rapids Press, said the workers discussed the case in depositions filed in Muskegon County Circuit Court.

In their depositions, court officials said, workers at a feed processing plant in Battle Creek told lawyers preparing for a $20 million lawsuit that they noticed the accidental mixup in 1973, but were told to remain silent.

The cattle feed, mixup led to the slaughter of 1.5 million chickens and tens of thousands of cattle and swine who consumed the toxic chemical, PBB, accidentally mixed in cattle feed.

In a copyrighted story, The Grand Rapids Press said sworn testimony taken from two employees at the Michigan Farm Bureau Services plant in Battle Creek showed that:

In 1973, a mixing operator at the plant told his plant manager, Eugene J. "Prosser," which contained PBB — the flame retardant chemical polybrominated biphenyl — were in the warehouse along with feed supplement.

"Nutrinastar." The operator said he was told to include the substance in a feed supplement inventory.

A year later, the same worker heard of the large-scale poisoning of cattle in Michigan and reminded the plant manager of the "Nutrinastar" incident. He was told to keep quiet.

A second employee who also remembered the 1973 incident approached the plant manager and also was told to keep quiet. The Press said plant manager Paul Mullinax denied the employees' allegations in another deposition. Mullinax was not available for comment.

Court officials in Lake City said at least four depositions were on file and contained information taken in the lawsuit, in which the Farm Bureau Services is suing Michigan Chemical Co. of St. Louis, Mich., for $20 million in damages stemming from the alleged mixup.

Millions of dollars in other lawsuits also are pending in various courts with scores of farmers filing suit for loss of livestock or damages.

Middleman's role pared

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Tuesday approved federal aid to encourage direct, farmer-to-consumer roadside fruit and vegetable stands and reduce the retail middleman's role.

The measure, approved on a 299-to-95 vote and sent to the Senate, would authorize $1.5 million in a one-year program of Agriculture Department technical advice to small farmers with roadside operations, in or near urban areas.

The aid would be in the form of grants to states which would work with extension service offices of the Agriculture Department.

Rep. Joseph Vignitto, D-Pa., manager of the measure, said farm markets within a city would benefit from the measure.

But Rep. Steven Symms, R-Idaho, attacked the bill as a $1.5 million boondoggle.

"My family runs a roadside fruit stand in Idaho," Symms said, but "I'm against letting the federal government put its long nose into this free enterprise business."

The afternoon session will be devoted to "business," consideration of resolutions and the election of officers.

The concluding sessions will commence at 4 p.m. at which time Woodland will address the convention. Dancing will follow.

Woodland has promoted and publicized the NFO ever since he joined the organization in 1967. He has farmed all his life except for two years in the United States Army.

He and his family presently operate a 340-acre irrigated farm at Blackfoot producing cattle, row crops, hay, grain and potatoes. He has a family of five boys and four girls ranging from 19 years to two years of age.

He has served the organization as county president, district president, national director for four years, district field representative, regional supervisor, executive assistant for the Western states and for the past several years in his present capacity. All farmers, or other interested individuals, are invited to attend the convention.

Wyoming predators mutilation cause

RAWLINS, Wyo. (UPI) — Carbon County Sheriff C.W. Ogburn says tests show seven of eight recent animal mutilations in Carbon County were caused by predators.

Ogburn said a test cow was killed Oct. 15 and studies by veterinarians and sheriff's officers who have investigated the eight mutilations reported since August. Predators attacked the dead cow and its bloated carcass was identical to those of cattle allegedly mutilated by humans, he said.

Investigators believe seven cattle and a horse were mutilated since mid-August. Ogburn said only one cow found mutilated near Elk Mountain could have been disfigured by something other than predators, he said.

Sexual organs, tails and feet parts were missing from the animals and holes were cut in their ears or undersides. Bloating causes ragged cuts made by predators to appear like straight surgical cuts after they dry, according to Dr. Herman Hancock of the Wyoming State Veterinary Laboratory. The skin stretches, pulling the ragged cut into a straight line.

Hancock said predators tend to attack body parts with the least hair and thinnest skin

Challis opinions gain air

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho cattlemen will be given an opportunity to express their views on the Challis Grazing Unit environmental impact report at the annual Idaho Cattlemen's Association convention Nov. 20-22 in Boise.

Association officials announced Tuesday William Swan of Horseshoe chairman of the public lands committees of the Idaho and national cattlemen's associations said a major problem to the cattlemen is input into the report being made by the Bureau of Land Management.

Swan said indications are the report will propose curtailment of use of the land for grazing to such an extent it will force cattlemen out of business or seriously hurt their efforts to maintain viable ranching operations.

He said cattlemen have had little opportunity for input but are seeking to have their ideas incorporated before the report is completed.

The Challis study will be analyzed by Swan and Mel Hughes of Middleton.

Among other major topics on the agenda are discussion of predator control and reversion and prevention of level as a major staple in the American diet.

Laird Noh of Kimberly will discuss predator control just prior to the concluding business session.

Association officials said efforts of the industry to pull itself out of "a monumental depression of recent years" will be related by Robert Rehbock of American Falls, chairman of a Beef Development Task Force for the Association and former president of the Idaho Cattle Feeders Association.

Other speakers will include Gordon Van Vleet, president of the American National Cattlemen's Association; G.G. Shamba, Chairman of the Bureau of Reclamation, and Idaho Rep. Steve Symms.

Supports fixed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Farmers who produce corn and other feed grains will get government price support protection on 80 million acres in 1976, the same acreage eligible for federal guarantees this year, the Agriculture Department says.

Officials said Tuesday they expected farmers would probably plant more than the allotted feed grain acre next year, as they did in 1975, which could lead to bigger meat supplies for consumers in late 1976.

The department, which approved a 15 per cent increase in the acreage of wheat eligible for support coverage in 1976, stressed in its announcement Tuesday that the national planting allotment set for next year's feed grain crops not a legal limit on the amount farmers can plant.

The allotment, which will later be broken down into allocations for individual farms, serves only as a limit on the acreage eligible for government price support loans, target price payments and disaster relief payments in case natural calamities hold yields far below normal.

Timber harvest favored

BY DAVE HORSMAN
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — A proposal for a major logging operation in the South Hills to control the mountain pine beetle in the region will be forwarded to the U.S. Forest Service officials by Jan. 1, according to district ranger Lew Munson.

An environmental analysis report — must be — finalized before the proposal is sent to the U.S. Forest Service, Munson said. Public comment on the plan strongly favors a timber harvest to control the infestation, he said. Of about 40 written comments, only three questioned the need for a logging operation, he added.

"In other words, the public has said 'Let's get it all,'" Munson said.

The proposal actually contains three alternatives for dealing with the South Hills problem. One would call for "doing nothing — let Mother Nature take its course," according to Munson. Another proposes "intermediate" logging of the area, which would allow harvesting of about 5 million board feet per year. The final alternative, the one favored by local Forest Service officials and the public, would permit about 10 million board feet to be cut each year for 10 years.

The favored alternative is probably the only one that would make a commercial logging operation economically feasible, Munson said.

Showers may dampen MV weekend

Twin Falls, Northside, Burley, Rupert area:
Partly cloudy tonight. Clouds and a slight chance of showers over the area, increasing Friday evening. Highs in the mid-50s to low 60s Friday. Lows tonight in the 30s.
The outlook for Saturday, mild seasonal temperatures and a chance of showers.

Wood River Valley:
Partly cloudy tonight. Clouds and a slight chance of showers over the area, increasing late Friday. Highs near the low 50s Friday. Lows, tonight in the upper teens and mid-20s.
The outlook for Saturday, seasonal temperatures with a chance of showers.

A cold front that passed through Southern Idaho this morning had little effect on the weather except to lower daytime temperatures 5 to 10 degrees today. Another cold front is close behind and will be bringing clouds and cooler air with a chance of precipitation Friday afternoon.

High temperatures Friday will lower another 5 to 10 degrees to 50 to 55 and night-time temperatures to near 30 degrees. The extended outlook for Saturday through Monday calls for continued unsettled fall weather with near normal temperatures and a chance of light showers through the period. Highs will be in the 50s with lows from the mid-20s through the mid-30s.

Burley mayor seeks mid-decade census

BURLEY — The city of Burley is planning an interim census.
Mayor Chuck Shaddock has written the Bureau of Census requesting information to start a mid-decade census for Burley.

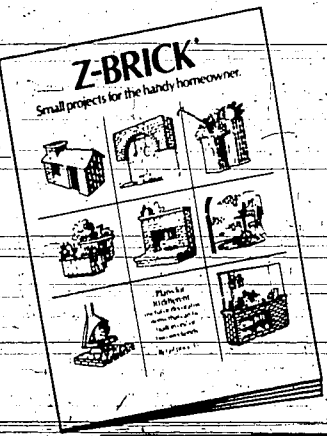

Burley plans to go ahead with a head count for that city as means of increasing the state funds returned to local jurisdictions on a per capita basis.
Jerry Vogwert, Mountain Bell manager, who resigned from the City Council last week, reported on the telephone company's count of living quarters in Burley and fringe areas.

The annual phone company count shows a jump of 270 homes this year. Vogwert says there is a possibility of a 10 to 15 per cent error because that count included some areas outside the city limits.

Vogwert says there were 4,436 living quarters in May 1973, and 4,536 in April 1974. The number jumped to 4,805 in April, 1975.
He pointed out that much of this increase came from Poplar Grove and Goose Creek Manor. He added that mobile home parks were figured on an occupancy percentage to avoid overcounting.

Valley faculty tests Kimberly

VALLEY — The Valley High School faculty will play the Kimberly High School faculty at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Valley High School. Admission is $1 for adults, high school and junior high students and 50 cents for grades one through six. Preschool children will be admitted free. Proceeds will be divided equally between the schools.

Phipps still may start

BEREA, Ohio (UPI) — Mike Phipps will start against the Detroit Lions Sunday only if his sprained foot heals before game time. Cleveland Browns coach Forrest Gregg said Wednesday. Unless Phipps is 100 per cent, the starting job will go to Will Curleton. No mention was made of backup quarterback Brian Sipe.

Phipps led the Browns to their only score against Baltimore last week, coming into the game after Sipe was unable to move the offense far two quarters despite good protection from the pass rush.

Beavers seek coaches

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon State University has launched the search for new head coaches in football and track, aiming for the appointment of both coaches "hopefully before Christmas."

The Board of Intercollegiate Athletics Wednesday decided applications for football coach will be received until Dec. 1 and for track coach until Dec. 5.

Brookington heals slowly

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — John Brockington ran more easily Wednesday but Green Bay Packers Coach Bart Starr wasn't ready to say his ace running back would automatically start Sunday against the Chicago Bears.

Brockington, who ran for more than 1,000 yards his first two years in the league, is off to a very slow start this season and suffered a deep thigh bruise against the Minnesota Vikings last week. Second year man Bart Starr replaced him and ran for 88 yards in 16 carries, the best performance by a Packer runner this season.

Asked if Brockington's starting status will depend entirely on his health, Starr said, "Not necessarily." Starr said quarterback John Hadl, who has a bruised back, still looks probable for the game against the Bears.

Celts drop Braves

BOSTON (UPI) — Power forward Paul Silas scored 11 of his 15 points in the third quarter and added seven rebounds in that stretch Wednesday night to pace the Boston Celtics to a 105-93 win over the Los Angeles Lakers in a National Basketball Association game.

The Celtics were trailing 65-61, 9-35 into the third period, but ran off 12 straight points — six by Silas — to grab a 73-65 advantage one minute into the final quarter.

Pistons thump Seattle

DETROIT (UPI) — Bob Lanier and Al Evershed scored 22 points apiece and Kevin Porter set a new home Detroit record Wednesday night in leading the Pistons to a 124-107 NBA victory over the Seattle SuperSonics.

Porter only scored five points but his 17 assists — many of them in the last five minutes of the game — established a new Cobo Arena mark for assists by a Pistons player.

Nets spank Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Julius Erving scored 10 points in the final six minutes Wednesday night to spark the New York Nets to a 119-102 American Basketball Association victory over the Indiana Pacers.

The Nets led only 97-91 when Erving, who finished with 36 points, took command. He quickly hit two free throws, a tip-in, two more free throws and two from the floor to pull the Nets into a comfortable 109-96 lead and wrap up the game.

76ers bomb Chicago

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Connie Norman scored 20 points, and Billy Cunningham and three other players finished in double figures to lead the Philadelphia 76ers to an impressive 115-82 win over the Chicago Bulls in a National Basketball Association game Wednesday night.

Chicago led 22-21 after one quarter but Norman, a 6-foot guard, came off the bench and scored 12 of his points in the second period when Philadelphia broke the game open. The Bulls trailed by only 34-28 with 7:10 left in the half but the 76ers then exploded for 15 straight points and a 49-28 bulge with 2:16 remaining in the second quarter.

Jazz pleases record crowd

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Pistol Pete Maravich scored 30 points to power the surprising New Orleans Jazz to a 113-110 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers Wednesday night before a record national basketball association crowd of 26,511 in the Louisiana Superdome.

The win was the sixth in a row for the Jazz against one loss, giving New Orleans an expansion team last year, the best record in the NBA.

The Lakers, 4-1, jumped to an early 11-point lead, but Los Angeles Star Kareem Abdul-Jabbar got into foul trouble and sat out much of the second period. He was assessed three fouls in period.

Spurs edge Utah

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Mike Gale and James Silas hit a pair of free throws each in the final 10 seconds to preserve a 121-117 NBA win for the San Antonio Spurs over the Utah Stars Wednesday night.

The Stars had jumped to a 37-27 lead at the end of the first quarter, but San Antonio gained control 65-58 at halftime behind an 11-point outburst by Silas in the second quarter.

The Spurs never led by more than seven points and Utah cut the margin to two points twice in the last 12 seconds before Silas and Gale went to the free throw line.

Nuggets rip St. Louis

DENVER (UPI) — Dan Issel scored 34 points and defensive ace Bobby Jones blocked seven shots and grabbed 16 rebounds Wednesday to lead the Denver Nuggets to a 111-98 American basketball association win over the Spirits of St. Louis.

The loss broke a five-game winning streak for the Spirits, who never have won in Denver. Jones also had 10 points and Ralph Simpson scored 25 for the Nuggets, now 4-2.

Marvin Barnes, 1974 ABA rookie of the year, hampered with injuries, came off the bench midway through the first quarter and led St. Louis with 10 points and 10 rebounds. Dan Adams had 12 points for the Spirits, now 3-4.

Buhl, Mountain Home top all-SCIC grid selections

The undefeated Buhl Indians and third place Mountain Home Tigers placed seven men each on the all-South Central Idaho Conference football team.

In a poll taken by coaches, the major surprise was the fact that the leading passer and runner-up in total offense, quarterback Cary Schmeckpeper of Buhl, was passed by in voting for Mountain Home's Mark Schiller. Schmeckpeper's being a junior was cited as a reason.

While Buhl and Mountain Home topped things with seven men each, Wood River had four, leading three, Jerome two and Filer one.

Members of the All-SCIC offensive unit include:

Center: Kevin Hamilton, Buhl; guards, Steve Atkins, Buhl, and Pat House, Wood River; tackles, Karl Brake, Filer, and Clark Muscat, Gooding; ends, Steve Hill, Buhl, and John Fabner, Mountain Home; quarterback, Mark Schiller, Mountain Home, and runningbacks Mike Edwards, Mountain Home; Tony Echeta, Gooding; Keith Metzner, Buhl, and Chris Bell, Buhl.

The defensive alignment was down linemen, T.J. Northcott, Wood River; Leonard Huston, Wood River; Buchanan, Mountain Home, and Craig Priett, Buhl; ends and linebackers, Mike Christensen, Mountain Home; Bob Adfield, Jerome; Hobbs Tracy, Wood River, and Scott Discher, Mountain Home, and second backs, Jade Robinson, Gooding; Rick Larsen, Jerome; Kole Berriochia, Mountain Home; Tim Young, Wood River, and Chuck Stoddard, Buhl.

Meanwhile, Bell grabbed three conference titles by leading the lead in rushing, total offense and points scored with 100. Schmeckpeper was the top passer with 1198 yards and 16 touchdowns and his 1163 total offense was second to Bell. Gill led the loop with 19 catches for 562 yards and 17 touchdowns while Buhl's Gary Paulson was the top punt returner with 201 yards.

Gooding's Jade Robinson won the punting title with a 37.7 average while Wood River's Tim Young topped the kickoff returners with 235 yards.

Andrus seeks aid for wilderness area bill

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Idaho's Gov. Cecil D. Andrus made a pitch to a Seattle civic club Wednesday for support in the upcoming fight to maintain the Chamberlain Basin as a designated wilderness area.

The governor asked the Rotary Club members to use their influence with their senators and congressmen when the Omnibus Wilderness bill goes before Congress.

"To some this may seem like throwing down the gauntlet, but I am determined to resist attempts by the Ford Administration and the power brokers of timber and mining interests to whack nearly 400,000 acres out of our previously untouched Idaho Primitive Area," he said.

Andrus said his effort to protect the basin puts him in the uncommon position of a state executive fighting to preserve federal lands but "I feel nonetheless that this stance will contribute to a better quality of life for future generations."

In prepared remarks, Andrus said he was disappointed that the president's decision to omit Chamberlain Basin from wilderness classification and the reasons given by his staff for this omission "incredibly include reference to the Basin's potential mineral and timber developments."

He said the 1.8 million acre wilderness he has proposed which includes the Chamberlain Basin "complements balanced planning and protects a priceless part of Idaho's heritage."

Andrus said he learned that the proposed reduction by 400,000 acres "came after Assistant Secretary Robert Long was visited by lobbyists from timber and mining companies seeking to develop certain portions of the primitive lands."

"The reduction was influenced by selfish interests, not common sense and biological facts," he said.

The State of Idaho, through a lawsuit, obtained a copy of the original Forest Service recommendation.

"The significance of winning a copy of the regional forest's report is that it provided proof — absolute proof — that an arbitrary political decision was made in Washington to overrule the good judgment of the regional forester, the public input of the people of Idaho and the State's recommendations."

Andrus said the area is important for elk herds, that 190 species of "wildlife" live there in ecological balance. But he said it is so poor for timber production that it would take 130 years or more to get regeneration of trees.

He pointed out that it would take 10 acres of Idaho Primitive Area twice as long to yield the same amount of timber that grows on one acre of coastal Oregon-Washington forest land.

The point I want to stress today is that whether one wants to talk about timber or minerals, the Chamberlain Basin, like the rest of Idaho's Salmon River drainage, is much more valuable as wilderness than it could ever be as an area developed for logging and minerals.

"For example, in the last century, mining in the fifth primitive areas has produced only $1.7 million in gross mineral values. In all their mining history, these areas have averaged only $20,000 per year. According to the U.S. Bureau of Mines and U.S. Geological Survey, the mineral potential of Idaho's two primitive areas is, at best,

"small to modest."

He pointed out that both the timber and mining industries are important to the Idaho economy but the area in question covers only three per cent of the state.

Major leaguers eye Cuban exhibitions

NEW YORK (UPI) — Negotiations are underway to send a major league All-Star team to Havana next spring to play against a Cuban All-Star squad, according to a report published Wednesday in a Long Island newspaper.

The proposed visit, which would be the first for U.S. athletes to Cuba since relations between the two countries broke off in 1961, was set in motion earlier this year by several legislators.

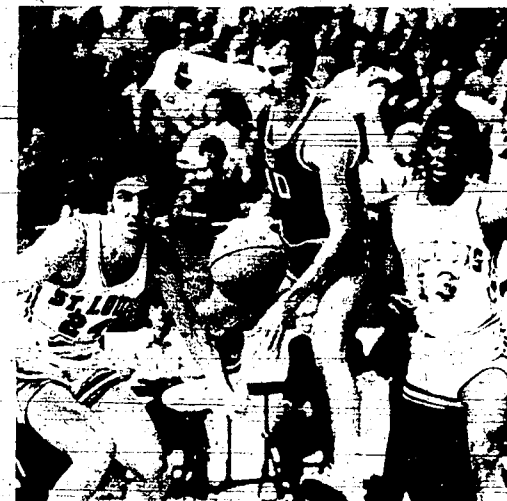

Those legislators also were responsible for getting a visa for the parents of Boston Red Sox pitcher Luis Tiant to visit the United States.

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn has refused comment about the proposed visit, but Kuhn reportedly met with the baseball czar of Cuba in Mexico City prior to the World Series to discuss the trip.

A Long Island newspaper, Newsday, Wednesday quoted a source close to the negotiations as saying that both countries were extremely interested.

"Cuba" wanted this, the U.S. wanted this and major league baseball wants this," Newsday said in quoting a source close to the negotiations. "But the Cuban government could not appear to be inviting the U.S., which does not recognize it. And major league baseball could not propose the tour, as it would need State Department sanction."

State Department policy prohibits American athletes from visiting countries where travel is off limits unless they are competing in Olympic-type games.

Judge enjoins NFL from signing ex-players of defunct league

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — A federal judge Wednesday issued a preliminary injunction allowing all former players from the defunct World Football League who are not under contract to sign with National Football League teams.

U.S. District Judge Edward J. Devitt said his ruling would stand "until a hearing on merits" of the injunction order is held Nov. 26.

The former Hawaiians included Ken Bowman, Chuck Dietwiler, Michael Donohue, John Kelsey, Karl Torch, David Olech, Robert Richards, Peter Solverson and Harold Stringer.

Glendon added eight more names to the list Wednesday, but since Devitt's order is a class action, all former WFL players are covered. The eight were Mark Kellar, Larry Gagner, John Wilbur, David Atkins, Richard Palmer, Ted Kwalek, William Ferguson and Cornelius Johnson.

Devitt said, "The extension to Nov. 26 should give all former World Football League players not under contract adequate time to negotiate and sign contracts with NFL teams."

The NFL office had ruled that Oct. 28 was the last day league teams could sign WFL players for the current season.

Devitt called that "decision a concerted boycott against former WFL players and a deprivation of the plaintiffs' rights of freedom to sign contracts."

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle testified the Oct. 28 deadline was "reasonable" because it was comparable to trade deadlines in other sports.

"The league doesn't want major changes in life in the season so one team could buy a championship," Rozelle said. "It could affect a championship race which had originally been established within the league rules."

"We're anxious to have players with talent from the World Football League in the NFL, but we'd like to have them in 1976, not this year."

Devitt nevertheless expanded a previous order to a class action for all former WFL football players not under contractual obligations.

He had issued a temporary restraining order last Friday which applied only to nine former members of the Honolulu Hawaiians who had filed a complaint.

He said affected WFL players would "suffer irreparable harm" and the court's capacity to do justice would be hindered "if they were not allowed extra time to negotiate and sign contracts with NFL teams."

Edward Glendon, an attorney for the nine original plaintiffs, argued, "NFL teams can acquire players on waivers up to the last week of the season to help strengthen themselves. All we want is the right for our players to negotiate with NFL teams."

Glenns Ferry, Buhl enter playoff action

Glenns Ferry and Buhl will carry Magie Valley's banner into football playoffs this weekend.

Glenns Ferry, representing the Little Five Conference, will take on perennial power Homedale in an A-3 clash at 3:45 p.m. Friday at Boise State stadium.

Buhl meets Marsh Valley at 3 p.m. Saturday at Twin Falls Bruin stadium, the second in a doubleheader of Southern Idaho's top A-2 schools. Vallivue appears to be more defensively oriented, winning consistently but not by margins. Madison, also strong defensively, appears to have a strong offensive attack.

The Little Five conference hasn't had a great deal of success against Homedale in playoffs over a five-year period. And there's little reason to expect an easy time for the Pilots Friday.

Homedale has bowed only once this season, that a 14-7 loss to highly regarded Lapwai last weekend. The third district crew reportedly is very strong defensively with an offense that likes to grind out scores.

Such adversity is not new to Glenns Ferry. The Pilots got into their conference slate about the time the rest of the teams were finishing their's and Coach Cecil Watson watched his charges pick up three straight "must" victories -- two by extra points.

Glenns Ferry's hopes appeared damaged as late as Wednesday night when top rusher Tom Wicher still was limping due to an ankle injury sustained against Valley.

Wicher provides the long threat for the Pilots and generally carried the ball between 20 and 30 times.

On the A-2 scene only, Buhl brings an undefeated record into the doubleheader at Twin Falls.

On the basis of comparative scores, the Indians rate as the most likely to succeed. However, a true champion won't be selected as the playoffs stop on what should be the semi-final level.

The Indians face a patient, ground-oriented team in Marsh Valley, whose only blemish is an opening season loss to Madison. Marsh Valley ripped through the fifth district conference in undefeated style.

"Our scouting reports -- which aren't too comprehensive -- show that Marsh Valley doesn't like to throw the ball," Coach Jon Jung says. "Their program indicates they'll have about a 15-pound per man advantage in the line -- their offense against our defense. Our hope is to make them throw. We don't think anyone can beat us throwing."

Buhl isn't exactly toothless in reply: A pair of juniors, half-back Chris Bell and quarterback Cary Schmeckpeper, dominated the South Central Idaho Conference statistics.

Bell ran for 142 yards and the same number led the loop in total offense. Schmeckpeper threw for 1198 yards. He likes to throw to Steve Hill, who caught only 19 but for a fine 529 yards and 10 touchdowns.

If those two aren't enough, Buhl complements them with Keith Meltzer, a 195-pound fullback who ended the regular season hurting tacklers worse than they hurt him.

Vallivue appears to be more defensively oriented, winning consistently but not by margins. Madison, also strong defensively, appears to have a strong offensive attack.

For whatever comparative scores are worth, Vallivue beat Bishop Kelly 20-14 in the playoff showdown. Kelly defeated Gooding 7-6 and bowed to Wood River 13-6. Buhl defeated both of those quite handily.

Burley is the common denominator the other way, bowing to Madison 20-14 and to Buhl 41-14.

After those games the only grid action left in Magie Valley will find the Twin Falls Bruins hosting the Minico Spartans at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday at Bruin Stadium.

Olympics will be on time, Lalonde says

QUEBEC CITY (UPI) -- Quebec Solicitor General Fernand Lalonde said Wednesday he was "reasonably sure" that Montreal's planned Olympic Stadium would be completed in time for the 1976 Summer Olympics and the Games will go on as planned.

Published reports in Montreal said Wednesday labor troubles have put construction of the Stadium and Olympic pools behind schedule and alternate facilities were being sought.

"We are reasonably sure the Stadium will be ready," Lalonde told the Quebec National Assembly. "and if anything is not totally complete it will certainly not prevent the Games being held in Montreal."

The head of the Olympic organizing committee, Roger Houssiau, said the $175 million Stadium and other facilities will be completed before the July 17, 1976 opening day of the Games.

"But there isn't a minute to lose until the day the Games start," Houssiau added.

Lalonde did express some concern about the soaring construction costs for the Olympic facilities, but he said he could not give any cost estimate until after he receives an expected financial report.

Construction costs were originally set at $250 million. Latest estimates place the cost "at slightly over $300 million."

The liberal caucus held a meeting Tuesday on the construction costs, a member of the National Assembly admitted.

Black grid teams seek No. 1 status

NEW YORK (UPI) -- Grambling Coach Eddie Robinson has won more games than any active college coach except Alabama's Bear Bryant. Grambling has sent more players to the National Football League than any other school except Notre Dame.

Yet the top Division I football powers won't put Grambling on their schedules why?

"On a given Saturday," Robinson, whose defending champion Southwestern Athletic Conference team is currently 7-1 and rated No. 4 by the NAIA, said Wednesday, "we and other top black colleges would be able to handle them. The manpower problem would catch up to us over the course of a season, week in and week out it'd be tough. We don't have as many coaches and booster clubs as the big schools."

"But we're always thinking of going to Division I. It could happen soon."

A lot of top schools are running away from Grambling, Jackson State, Tennessee State, South Carolina State," added Norfolk State Coach Dick Price. "All these schools could be competitive with Division I teams. The reigning powers would have everything to lose and nothing to gain."

Robinson and Price were here to promote their Saturday, Nov. 15 game at Shea Stadium in the Fifth Annual Whitney M. Young, Jr. Memorial Classic.

The Grambling coach hopes he'll get that chance to play a football power soon, pointing out his team's drawing power as the factor that could lead to a possible major bowl bid for the Tigers in the near future.

Thousands rally around Bob Prince

PITTSBURGH (UPI) -- About 10,000 fans turned out Wednesday to show their support for former Pirate broadcasters, Bob Prince and Nellie King.

Prince and King were notified last week by radio station KDKA that their contracts were not being renewed for 1976 and it touched off a local furor. Hundreds of persons called the station to register their protest and many others wrote letters to the editors of the local newspapers.

Another radio station, WEPK, promoted a parade through the downtown area Wednesday and staged a rally at Point State Park to give protesters a chance to voice their feelings openly.

Only about 250 persons were in the parade when it started in warm, sultry 60-degree temperatures at the Civic Arena, but the number grew as the participants neared the park. An estimated 10,000 persons were on hand at the park.

Prince and King rode atop a fire truck along with several Pirate players, drawing cheers from persons lining the parade route. The marchers were joined by two high school bands and a number of cars and trucks.
